HONGKONG, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1892.

THE year which has now almost reached its close has been a comparatively quiet and uneventful one. So far as this colony is concerned, it has been, in some degree at least, a period of rest and recuperation, a period during which the community has recovered a little from the evil effects of the fever of speculation which made the previous year the gloomiest in the history of Hongkong. If the recovery has not been so rapid as could be desired, it may at least be said that the coloriy is in a healthier condition financiallythan it was twelve months ago and i able to look with more calmness and confidence towards the future. There have been few events in the world abroad which have affected the colony greatly. One of the incidents of the year which awakened, naturally, a good deal of interest was the meeting of the Monetary Conference at Brussels, which may now be said to have proved utterly abortive. It can hardly be said that much hope was entertained at any time with regard to any beneficial result from this international Palaver; and this has taken the edge off the disappointment felt on account of the failure of the Conference to find salvation for silver. We can still, however, take to ourselves such consolation as may be found in the reflection that something must be done ere long to improve the monetary status of the sadly-depreciated

One other incident of the year with respect to which the colony gave some indication of unusual interest was the General Election at Home—although it must be admitted that, if this interest were to be measured by the success of the attempt to obtain a census of political opinion here, it did not assume very important dimensions. Perhaps a bettar indication of its extent would be found in the heartiness and unanimity with which Reuter was condemned for his failure to let us know the result of the election. The return of Mr Gladstone to office would not perhaps cause any keen disappointment to the 218 True Blue Tories who made a confession of their political faith here, and if it did the disappointment, would be considerably modified no doubt by the reflection that the Grand Old Man's tenure of office is by no means so secure as his followers would like it to be, in view of the approaching struggle over the great question of

Home Rule for Ireland. The 'Great European War' which the prophets have been seeing in the immediate foreground of future history for the last decade has not yet taken place; indeed, it seems now to have shifted somewhat into the background. The Great Powers are preparing for it, or preparing to prevent it, by increasing their armies and improving their weapons of destruction. But an enemy which all the armies of the world could not keep out invaded almost every state in Europe this year and slew its tens of thousands. From the horrors of the Cholera scourge we in this part of the world have had the good fortune to be free; and although we could only partially realise the extent of the havoc wrought by the dread visitant, it was impossible to read the accounts of its devastating march without being pro-Pros. &c., &c. | foundly impressed by the terrible rapidity with which it spread death around, or without feeling how poorly equipped even civilised nations are for doing battle with such a foe. - *** This colony shared the satisfaction which was felt throughout the rest of the civilised world in the result of the Presidential Election in the United States. The triumph of the Democratic party is all the more welcome inasmuch as the battle was fought mainly on the issue of tariff reform.

In China there have been fewer and less serious anti-foreign demonstrations in 1892 than there were during the proceding year, but quite enough to show not only that the anti-foreign feeling exists but that it is still diligently fostered and stirred into activity when occasion offers by those whom the mass of the population look upon as men of light and leading. The force hatred of the foreigner and his works which burns in the heart of the notorious Chon Han found expression in a fresh series of vile placards and pamphlets for which the means of circulation were readily found. This too, while Chou Han was supposed to be A Large and Varied ASSORTMENT of suffering punishment and disgrace on account of previous 'aberrations' of the same kind. The results of these last attempts to inflame the popular prejudice against foreigners by the dissemination of malignant and disgraceful slanders were fortunately less serious than those which were brought about by the former flood of Hunan Tricts. The list of anti-foreign demonstrations for the year opened with what was described as 'an incipient riot' at Yangchow, where the Baptist Mission was attacked. In this case the Chinese officials, it must be admitted, acted with a promptitude which was as commendable as it was unusual, and succeeded in putting an end to the riot before much harm was done. This occurred in February, and in the same month a similar affair was reported from Wenchow where a mob entered senis-2292 signary meeting house and wrocked the furniture: afterwards making a bonfire | £200,000, the Ordinance for which is mere rowdvism. THE chief officer of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade has designed and constructed an apparatus known as the water tower. which will facilitate the work of the brigade and lesson the risk to the firemen. The apparatus consists of an arrangement by means of which a jet of water may be thrown from the top of a ladder or a fire escape, the direction of the jet being capable of being altered at the pleasure of the person in charge of the apparatus, and who is stationed on the ground. The machine has been tried with good effect at one large fire in the metropolis.

THE Directors of the P. & O. Co. in their annual report, make the following reference to the Bokhara disaster :- It is with feelings of the deepest sorrow that the directors have to allude to the loss of the Bokhara in the China Sea, on Oct. 10, of which the proprietors must have already learned the particulars through the medium of the Press. While on a voyage from Shanghai to Hongkong, this vessel encountered a terrific cyclone, against which she made headway satisfactorily for many hours, until at length her decks were swept To succession of tremendous seas, which forced their way below and extinguished the fires. The ship was thus rendered temporacily helpless . It was while she was in this situation, and at the moment that the engineers were engaged in relighting the fires, that she struck upon a rock in the Formesa Channel (towards which she had been driven out of her proper course by the extreme force of the storm) and almost instantly sank in deep water. It is impossible to speak too highly of the manner in which every one heliased under circumstances appalling even to the bravest, but the result of such an instantaneous shipwreck was the loss of meny valuable lives. In the commander, Captain Sams, who was drowned, the company have lost one of the most capable of their younger officers, and it is due to his memory, and to the momory of all who perished, to say that everything that it was possible to do was done, under circumstances where human aid or courage could be of little or no

Already there is a talk of a contemplated addition of one hundred thousand spindles to the productive powers of beat Mills. This would mean an increase of about 175 bales a day or close upon five thousand bales per month to the legal output. At the close of 1839 the number of Mills. throughout Japan was 34 running in aggregate of 268,988 spindles, increasing to 37 mills in 1890 capable of running 382,976 spindles. It is estimated, however, that only 270,000 spindles on an average were employed during the year producing only 110,000 bales of 400 lbs. In 1891 the number of Mills was reduced to 36, and at the close of the first half of last year they stood at 35 with 324,800 spindles producing 102,500 bales as against 110,000 bales in the whole of 1890 and 110,625 bales in 1891. Whilst this is being written, telegraphic news has been received from Japan of the total destruction by fire of two Mills in Osaka containing 30,000 spindles. The great drawback to the local 2 industry in Japan is the unsuitability of the Home grown Cotton for spinning either lalone or after mixing with other steple on account of its harshness and shortness, and the cost to which the Mills are, put in supplying themselves from foreign markets. NEW-YEAR'S EVE, OR HOGMANAY. | IT IS THREE THOUSAND MILES LONG. As a general statement, it may be asserted that neither the last evening of the old year nor the first day of the new one is much observed in England as an occasion. of festivity. In some parts of the country, indeed, and more especially in the northern counties, various social merry-makings take for drinking, and even for washing, the water of place; but for the most part, the great holiday-time is already past. Christmas Eve. Christmas-day, and St. Stephen's or Boxing Day have absorbed almost entirely the tendencies and opportunities of the community at large in the direction of joviality and relaxation. Business and the ordinary routine of daily life have again been resumed; or, to apply to English habits the words of an old. Scottish rhyme still current, but evidently belonging to the old times, anterior to the life on its red carrent and brings away disease Reformation, whon Christmas was the great and death on its dark ont. popular festival:

'Yule's come and Yule's gane," And we had deserted weel; See Jock moun to his fall again, And Jenny to her wheel.'

Whilst thus the inhabitants of South Britain are settling down again quietly to difficulty in breathing. There was an attendant loss of their annual saturnalia, which, till recently. bore, in the license and boisterous merriment which used to prayail, a most unmistakable resemblance to its ancient pagan namesake. The epithet of the Daft [mad] Days, applied to the season of the New ! Year in Scotland, indicates very expressive of Sleep bears no healing in his wings. We allude to the great Mississippi River in America. For hundreds of miles of its course it is yellow with the earth which the swift carrent has torn from its banks. Probably the Mississippi bears constantly in solution ground enough to make many a rich farm, though the amount is, of course, greater at times of flood. Thus, the Mississippi must first be purified.

It is the same with anything which either for appearance or utility is in some way thrown out of character. For instance, the blood in our body is a river. From the heart to the extremities it is of a bright red colour, but on its return through the veins it is dark and sluggish. The reason is that when it starts from the heart it has just been purified, and when it comes back it is loaded with all sorts of rofuse matter it has picked up in its journey.
